Nor Probable.—The Washington correspondent of the Philadelphia North American affairs, and the printing of tions of the two countries. Lord Napier repeated these assurances, with an emphatic expression of his own favorable opinion, and efinched them with the repeated declaration, just as Sir Henry Bulwer used to do, that Great Britain desired no advantage of position in Central America, and wished only to preserve her honor and good faith to others, in retiring from this scene of complicated contest. These regotiations proceeded so far, in fact, that the completion of the message was delayed, in the expectation that the steamer which arrived just before Congress met would bring a conclusive proposition from England, which would enable the President to announce a settlement of the controversy. But it did not come, and for reasons which are best known on the other side." This may all be correct, but we consider it extremely improbable. Indeed, we haven't the faintest doubt that it is pure moon shine. Such "overtures" would be quite unparalleled in the annals of British diplomacy. The reasons why the proposition didn't come may possibly be "best known on the other side," but we fancy they are sufficiently known to everybody on this side who is at all familiar with the British charac-

PRINTING BANK NOTES .- According to Professor Silliman, a new method of printing bank notes has been invented in Canada, which overcomes every defect found to exist in other plans. This method is simply the use of two permanent and opaque inks, both of which are insoluble and indelible. The one is a black carbon ink, in which the engravings of a bank note are usually printed, and the other is a natural green ink, for tinting the surface of the note, which is produced directly from the sesquioxide of chromium. The discovery of a light-colored ink, possessing the same qualities as the well-known black ink, whose basis is carbon, is certainly an important event. And if these two inks, when united on a bank note, have no photographic contrast-if they are permanent in their color, and, as Professor Silliman says, unchangeable by anything which the chemist has at present at his disposalthen the new method is certainly one or decided

THE POETICAL WORKS OF JAMES R. LOWELL. Complete in two Volumes. Boston: Ticknor & Fields. The proverbial "blue and gold" of Messrs. Ticknor & Fields constitute a fitting garb for the poetry of Lowell-as delicate as the tints of the vault of heaven, as rich as "the wealth of Ormus, or of For raciness combined with subtlety we know of nothing in modern poetry to surpass the best of Lowell's poems. But this edition of his works, in its way, is as exquisite as the most perfect thing he has written. For sale by Morton & Griswold.

The Ronzani Troupe is underlined to appear at our theatre next week. It consists of between thirty and forty celebrated dancers, who will open next week in the ballet of Faust, composed by Sig nor Ronzani on the same mysterious plot of Gothe's sublime tragedy. They have been everywhere re ceived with great applause, and will without doubt be fully appreciated in our city.

The resumption of specie payments by the Providence Banks has made no change in financial affairs there. There is no demand for specie, and Cincinnati on Wednesday last and robbed of $25 considerable deposits of it are going into the banks, The general suspension of the jewelry business has greatly lessened the call for gold.

RUTH. BY JNO. J. PIATT.

How beautiful she stands to-day! That Gleaner of the day of old-In Orientel harvest-lands, Framed in the harvest-gold! Like Faith, her tired hands folded o'er The heavenly angel guest, her heart; Sweet Ruth! among the alien corn

Her soul that moves about her face. Some angel fresh from heaven, seems— Down through the galleries of the Past— A painting hung in dreams.

With golden solitude of air, And solitary birds alone Seem chanting to her there.

Forevermore apart!

The sunset, full of blended sheaves Hiding among that golden air, The painted trees of autumn leaves, How solitary there!

She breathes forever! they are gone— The Reapers—their last reaping o'er, While in the fields of Memory lives The Gleaner evermore. PRAIRIE BIRD, Shelby county, Ill.

MR. FLAGG'S REPORT ON FOREIGN COMMERCIAL RELATIONS .- The New York Commercial Advertiser pays the following merited tribute to this invaluable work:

"We observe," says the National Intelligencer, in copying this high but strictly just praise, "by the Washington correspondence of another New York journal that the superintendent of this important work, in accordance with a purpose long entertained, contemplates upon its completion retiring from his statistical labors for pursuits less exacting, and, to a man of letters, perhaps more congenial. Had we not already united our testimony with that of the press throughout the country re-pecting the value of the series of commercial and other statistics prepared at the State Department during the last three or four years, under the charge of Mr. Flagg, it would be quite gratuitous for us to do so now. By the appreciative liberality of Congress those works are everywhere, and everywhere they speak for themselves."

House Blown UP WITH A KEG OF POWDER .-25th ult., a keg of powder was placed under the the Mechanic house. ber where Mr. C., his wife, and two children were sleeping-and there exploded, blowing the building to atoms, and severely injuring all the inmates, though singularly enough none were killed. The office of the Louisiana Herald was also destroyed. Two of the negroes of Mr. Chaffer were arrested on suspicion of having perpetrated this diabolical crime, and one of them has since made confession.

THE MARION RIFLES .- This fine military com pany paraded yesterday. They have a handsome uniform and make a most beautiful appearance. In what they excel, however, is in their drilling. They marched and countermarched, performing at the same time the most difficult evolutions with a precision that would have done honor to veterans in the service. Capt. Woodruff may well be proud of his company, and deserves high commendation for the manner with which he has perfected them in military tactics.

WAYERLY NOVELS. Household Edition. THE ABвот. Boston: Ticknor & Fields.—It is superfluous to say anything in praise of the Waverly Novels. The world has long since taken every one of them to its heart, and probably nothing will ever wrest even the least perfect from the loving embrace. Those who have obtained the earlier numbers of this cheap yet elegant edition will of course secure "The Abbot." And we recommend all others who do not possess it, if there are any others, to do it now. For sale by Morton & Griswold.

The specie reserve, for the first time in the history of New York banking, is now above thirty millions of dollars. The accumulation of undrawn deposits has attained the large figure of $67,723,909. Some of the $100 Treasury notes made their appearance in Wall street on Tuesday, and were sold at 1/2 per cent. discount.

EVIL DOINGS NORTH AND SOUTH .-- A Mr. J. Smith in one of the interior counties of New York advertises that his wife Sarah has run off with a mulatto man, and Mr. James A. Clark of Missis sippi publishes that his wife has run off with four of his negroes.

FIGHT BETWEEN THE MECHANIC AND HOPE FIFE COMPANIES-Man Shot and Dangerously Wounded. Our city was disgraced last night by a fight between the Mechanic and Hope fire companies, in which a member of the Mechanic named Fred Haus was shot, and it is feared mortally wounded. The ball entered the chest an inch below the heart. Haus was carried to the office of Dr. McCabe, on First st. Haus resides on Market street, between Brook and

The precise particulars of the affair it was impossible to obtain, but we will give them as they were told us. Before entering into any details, it may be well to state that a feeling of animosity has existed between these companies for some time, and that several previous encou! ters have taken place.

The gas lamps well not lit, and the moon being hidden by the clouds the streets were quite dark. The alarm of fire was caused by the burning of a bed in a house on Fourth street, between Market and Jefferson. It was put out without the aid of the engines. The bell of the Washington engine house gave the first alarm for the Fifth district, in which the fire had been, but several of the engines ran into the Sixth district.

In returning, the Mechanic and Hope engines came up Jefferson street together, and, when near Second street, the Hope Company having much the smaller engine, passed the Mechanic. Here the row started. The Mechanic members, it is said, left their engine, and, coming up with the Hope, stones and brickbats were freely used, and finally firearms. Five shots were fired, one of which took effect on Haus, as above stated. One version was that the shot which wounded Haus was fired by one of the Mechanic members, and another version was that the shot was fired by a member of the Hope company. A notorious character belonging to the latter is said to have fired three shots.

The Hope company finally abandoned their apparatus, and after the melee it was taken possession of by the Mechanic, with the intention of running it into the river. This was however prevented through the exertions of the director of the Mechanic com-At Minden, Claiborne parish, La., on the night of the pany, and the engine was left in the street opposite

In other cities pay departments have been found not only more orderly, but also more efficient. Until the present system is abandoned, we may look for repeated occurrences of this kind.

P. S. Since the above, we learn that Arthur Harrington, the director of the Hope company, and John McNeil have been arrested.

Haus, at a late hour last night, was better, and there was some hope of his recovery.

An attempt was made to fire the Club Hous last night. A window in an alley was broken, and a lot of matches was thrown in. Fortunately the fire was discovered in time to prevent a serious conflagration.

THE CITIZENS' BANK OF GOSPORT -We warned our readers the other day of the issues of this concern. Persons cannot always rely on quotations given in detectors. The Indianapolis Journal, of Wednesday, has the following in regard to it:

The Citizens' Bank of Gosport, a shinplaster con The Citizens' Bank of Gosport, a shinplaster concern that we have frequently denounced, has failed." It has not been long since one J. H. Swaar, the "cashier" of this institution, published a card stating that the paper was as good as gold and would be redeemed on presentation. This, everybody who knew anything about the manufacturers of bogus money, believed to be a hoax, and so it has proved. If people would not receive such money it could not money, believed to be a hoax, and so it has proved. If people would not receive such money it could not get into circulation, and nobody would be swindled by it. Beware of the issues of all bogus banks. And the same paper of yesterday adds:

The Citizens' Bank of Gosport, which we noticed resterday, has forced a large quantity of its money into circulation. We heard of one case where the managers gave a man $7,000 of their money for circulation in Iowa for the man's individual note of $500. This is pretty broad swindling, but a game that has been played by bogus banks more than once. The money of this bank is worthless, and all who ke it will be "sold."

[For the Louisville Journal.] STREETS AND PAVEMENTS.

Our city government, after fining and compelling nost of our merchants and manufacturers to remove obstructions from the sidewalks, now graciously say they may again occupy them with tar, whisky, castings, &c. Why, it is difficult to imagine, unless after awhile to make another haul from such as may after awhile to make another haut from such as may fail to keep themselves informed of these inexplicable changes. Let the ordinance be restored (with a clause for notice) and enforced upon all—as we'll as that against depositing ashes and other obstructions in the streets, except when the city carts are hauling dirt therefrom.

PROF. HOLYOKE AT THE MASONIC TEMPLE. - Prof. Holyoke's readings at the Masonic Temple last night were a complete and delightful triumph. Journal by Thomas D. Tilford, Esq., They gave unbounded satisfaction to a select and plished Teller of the branch of the Northern Bank most discriminating audience.

from Memphis to New Orleans. The McLellan has which the exercises epened, were splendid specimens of elecution, exciting in his audience an admiration almost too deep and touching even for applause. He could not easily have selected more exquisite poems, and nobody could have easily rendered them with greater beauty and felicity.

Distrusting the lower register of his voice, in consequence of a still lingering cold, Prof. Holvoke substituted the Merchant of Venice for Macbeth, and read it with most charming effect. Indeed, we think we have never seen or heard the parts he read so finely interpreted before.

As to the readings from Dickens, Sam. Weller's Valentine, and the speech of Sergeant Buzfuz, in Pickwick's trial, nothing that we are able to say could suggest the slightest idea of their infinitely ludicrous perfection. They were as inimitable as the productions they so faithfully rendered. Certainly a man who can thus readily soar with Shelley, dive with Shakspeare, and splurge with Dickens, must be one of uncommon versatility of offis. The mere elocutionary skill displayed by Prof. Holyoke is the least of his merits. Next Monday night the Professor, who is himself an artist, delivers a lecture on Architecture. Within the whole range of material interests, we should be puzzled to name a subject of higher practical import. And we can safely assure our readers that Prof. Holyoke's effort will be entirely worthy of the

MARRIED. 20th inst., by the Rev. William Helman, Boorse to Miss MATTIE R. CHEATHAM, both FRIDAY EVENING, JAN. 22, 1858

THE CALLIOPE. -This is the well-known name of the machine which dispenses music by steam. A plain description of this instrument or apparatus will, we think, be much more intelligible and to the point, than what has commonly met the public eye. It is composed of three small cylinders, into which are fitted a variety of brass "bells" and "bowls," graduated in size, to utter the sounds corresponding to the several tones and semi-tones of two octaves. The steam is passed into the cylinders, and, as each note is touched, it rushes up into the corresponding "bowl," issuing whence from a circular perforation, it strikes the edges of the hollow bell above it, very much as the breath of the player catches the orifice of the reeds in a set of Pandean-pipes. This is the whole machinery, and nothing could be less intricate. To admit the steam into the proper "bowl," keys, like those of a pianoforte, are manipulated by the performer, and the steam acts merely as the wind does from the bellows in the organ; but there are "barrels" prepared for it; and when one is inserted, and a strap applied to the crank from the engine, the machine will play without assistance whatever music may be arranged upon the "barrel."

PROGRESS OF SPIRITUALISM .- The Springfield (Mass.) Republican says it hears from the best authority that there are actually companies of spiritualists in Boston who sit in circles perfectly undisguised with clothing, that is to say, in puris nauturmen and women indiscriminately. We should not credit the statement did it not come to us directly from those that knew the facts.

THE APPROACHING MARRIAGE OF THE PRINCESS ROYAL OF ENGLAND .- The chief subject of interest in England and upon the continent at the present time is the approaching marriage of the Princess Royal of England with the young Prince of Prussia, and heir to the throne of that country. The preparations in London for the ceremonies are of the most extensive character, and already fill columns of the English papers, from which we make the following extracts:

The court will come to London, from Windsor, on the 15th of January, after which the several royal and distinguished visitors will begin to arrive from day to day, to be present at the marriage of the Princess of England with the future King of Prussia, which takes place on the 25th. One of the Austrian archdukes, brother of the Emperor, will be present, and all the heads of the royal families of Hohenzollern and Saxé Coburg, several of their members, and of the house of Hanover. The preparations at the palace, and at all the places bespoke for the illustrious guests, are on the most extensive for the illustrious guests, are on the most extensive scale:

The royal procession will enter the palace by the garden entrance from St. James's Park. To the rear of the palace there will be a large covered cor-ridor, under which the royal party will alight, and along which seats will be provided for privileged spectstors. The old fashioned private entrance for her Majesty will be done away with, and two en-trances, each six feet wide, will be made in the ves-tibule, so that the Oneen and her suite will be entibule, so that the Queen and her suite will be enabled to enter at the same time. The royal procession will then proceed up the private staircase into the royal boudoir, which is being magnificently refitted for the occasion.

The orchestra will comprise the principal artists and vocalists of English and foreign celebrity, as well as the elite of the boys of Westminster Abbey, St. Paul's, and the chief choirs in the kingdom.

The applications for places to view the procession and ceremony have already exceeded by about ten nt of accomn odation that can be af forded. Seats will be provided for about 1,500 per

There will be a splendid breakfast at Buckingham Palace and a grand banquet in the evening. The Prince and Princess will proceed to Windsor, where they will remain until the 29th of January, when they will come to town and remain for a fortnight. It is during this fortnight—the first in February—that all the royal and popular festivities will take place. At the end of that time the bride and bridegroom will proceed to their own future residence in the royal yacht, which will convey them to Hamburg.

The London correspondent of the New York Commercial says:

The details received of the recent earthquake in the kingdom of Naples show it to have been a most extensive and terrible calamity. Popular exaggeration brings the total of killed to 20,000 or 25,000. The real number is thought to be about 3,000—costainly not less

The question is incapable of direct solution, and fortunately science does not require that it should be known; but the extent to which subdivision has been carried in the art is prowhich subdivision has been carried in the art is plot digious. In the gilding of buttons, five grains of gold, which is applied as an amalgam with mercury, is allowed to a gross; so that the coating left must not be more than the 110,000th part of an inch in thickness. If a piece of ivory or white satin be immersed in a solution of nitro muriate of gold, and

In this case the copper must be attenuated ten millions of times, and yet there is sufficient in each drop of water to give it color. Animal matter likewise exhibits many instances of wonderful subdivision. One of the infusorial animalcule round in duck weed is ten millions times smaller than a hemp seed; and another, discovered in ditch water, appears in the field of a microscope a mere atom endowed with sentient life, and millions of them play, like sunbeams, in a single drop of liquid.

The Hughes Telegraph Instrument.— We were yesterday favored with an opportunity of witnessing the working of the Hughes Telegraphic Instrument, on the invitation of Mr. James Eddy, superintendent of the American Telegraph Company. As the instrument has already been described in our columns, it is unnecessary to enter into the details of the manner in which it operates. Though patented in 1855, it has thus far been used merely for experimental purposes. It now goes into practical operation, and will henceforth be used to transmit the messages of the above company. The rapidity with which it worked, and the facility with which dispatches were sent and received to and from Philadelphia, at the same time, on a single wire, during the exhibition yesterday, called forth expressions of admiration from the large number of telegraph mean and merchants who visited it. Among the other messages received from the Philadelphia operator was one stating that the telegraph office in that city was crowded with curious citizens, one of whom for the past two years had denounced the improvement as a humbug, but who now acknowledges it to be everything that its friends claim for it. Two battery cells only are used to supply the electricity at each end of the wire, while from fifteen to thirty are necessary to work the House and Morse instruments. The Hughes instrument is unquestionably the most perfect telegraphic apparatus that has yet been invented, and in its practical working justifies all that its inventor claimed for it at the outset.—N. Y. Courier.

ANOTHER EXTRAORDINARY CASE OF PRIVATE VENGEANCE .- The Paris correspondent of the London News writes as follows: A remarkable instance of the length to which the A remarkable instance of the length to which the doctrine of private vengeance, sanctioned as it has so often been by French juries, is likely to be carried out in practice, has just occurred at Briey, in the department of the Moselle. The facts remind one forcibly of the Jeufosse case. In the present, instance, the person who set the example of taking the law into his own hands was the Mayor of the commune. He, however, like Madame de Jeufosse, eaced by a deputy. Instead of an old and faithful acted by a deputy. Instead of an old and faithful servant, his own son, acting under his orders, laid in wait to take a fellow-creature's life. The name of the Mayor is only indicated by an initial in the Droit, which reports the case as follows: "A young man, named Basset alias Faufan, one day met Mad'lle P——, the daughter of the Mayor of Ail, walking in a wood. He induced her to talk to him, made love to her, and succeeded in obtaining a woodle of another meeting.

made love to her, and succeeded in obtaining a promise of another meeting.

The interviews, innocent at first, went on titlethey were guilty. For three whole months the Mayor's daughter secretly received Basset in her bedroom at night. His habit was to get over a low wall which separated the Mayor's garden from the street, to use as a ladder the bars of the blinds of the groundfloor windows, and thus to get to the window-sill of the young lady's chamber on the first floor. Neither the Mayor nor his family knew of these clandestine meetings till two cousins, of the female sex, ferreted out the affair, and told Mr. P—of it. On the 22d of December last, just as the family was going to bed, Mr. P—ordered his daughter to sleep on the ground-floor, instead of her own bedroom. In that ground-floor, instead of her own bedroom. In that bedroom he placed her brother, his son. He put into his hands a loaded double-barrelled gun and told him to shoot a man whom he would probably see getting in at the window. The young man drew a chair toward the window, sat down upon it, kept his young contains the probably see and the probably see the state of the probably see that the probably see the probably gun cocked in his hand, and remained ready to execute his father's orders. At a quarter past 9 o'clock he saw a man's head through the window. Basset, as usual, was at the top of the first blind, expecting

The Mayor's son rose from his chair, went to the window, opened it, and fired both barrels at Basset, who fell dead on the spot. The Mayor, when the deed was done, sent for the gendarmerie to tell them of it, and he was lost in astonishment when they of it, and he was lost in astonishment when they said it was their duty to arrest him on a charge of murder. He had doubtless read Mr. Berryer's speech at Evreux, and from the conclusion (which, the premises being admitted, is entirely logical) that because the law excuses homicide upon the person of a man found breaking into a house in the night time, on the ground that he must be presumed to come with the intention to rob er murder, therefore it is justifiable to kill a particular individual who is known to come secretly indeed, but with the sanction known to come secretly indeed, but with the sanction of one of the inmates of the dwelling, and with no felonious intention. The Mayor of Ail thought it a matter of course to avenge his daughter's easy virtue by assassinating her favored lover. He and his son are in prison, and must undergo the form of trial for murder; but if modern doctrines on the veniality of assassination are to prevail they will be acquitted with flying colors. with flying colors.

MIRACULOUS - A PHYSICIAN CONVERTED DISEASES CURED ON THE INSTANT.—The Rev. Father Gaudentius Rossi, assisted by the Rev. Father Anthony Calandri and Luke Baudinelli, all belonging to the Passionist Monastery of Blessed Paul of the Cross, Birmingham, Pa., have for several weeks been giving missions, with marvellous success and effect, in different parishes of the Diocess of Brooklyn. These holy and self-derving cese of Brooklyn. These holy and self-denying missionaries gave their first mission at St. Jeseph's Church, Bedford, in the bounds of Brooklyn city.

The religious interest excited by this first miswas of the most remarkable character. The church was thronged at every service; more than five thousand went to communion, and at the close of the mission some twelve or fifteen non Catholics, some of them persons of superior education, were received into the church. In the course of this mission, it is asserted on creditable authority that God was pleasasserted on creatable authorny that God was pleas-ed to manifest his favor by special graces of an ex-ternal character. The rumor, some say, went abroad among the humble who mostly compose the parish, that bodily diseases were cured by some of these

The blind, the lame, the afflicted with various chronic diseases were brought to the courch in great numbers. The sensation created by this movement among those unprepared by their education for such "signs following them that believe" was intense. Father Gaudentius blessed that those that came to him with the relics of the holy founder of his Order, Blessed Paul of the Cross, and in some cases cure were effected on the instant. Others were popular ly reported, but not so attested as to be cited here. A physician of Brooklyn was one of the number converted by the grace bestowed in this mission.

The Rochester Union remarks on the above that it could believe the whole story except the conversion of the physician. That, the Union claims, is a miracle too impossible for these latter days. Physicians will acknowledge the hit administered by the Union, but they will assign their incredulity to another reason. DIVISIBILITY.—This is a property possessed by all bodies, and means their capability to be separated into parts.

It was formerly a question among philosophers last evening, Constable Wm. B. Watson, with his uty Wm. Meek and Mr. Woodford wie Cammant deputy Wm. Meek and Mr. Woodford McCallinding called upon Mr. John W. Tyzack, 84 Morgan street, to collect $25 60, the balance of an execution for $119 60, in favor of Thompson, White, & Prior. Tyzack had not the money, and Watson offered to take a bond for the same till the 3d prox. Tyzack refused, and the constable found it necessary to leave upon the good. He therefore sett Meek for a refused, and the constable found it necessary to levy upon the goods. He therefore sent Meek for a furniture car. When Meek had left, Tyzack locked the door. Watson, expecting that trouble was at hand, ordered him to open it. He refusing, the officer was attempting to open it, when Tyzack seized him and a struggle ensued. The constable was unarmed. He succeeded in partly opening the door, when Tyzack closed it, fastening a portion of the officer's coat with the door. While Officer Watson was thus confined, Tyzack picked up a hatchet. McCammant, being also unarmed, ran out at the rear to call Meek, fearing for Watson's life. Meek had heard the door locked behind him, and, finding that there was trouble, burst in the door. As he did had heard the door locked behind him, and, finding that there was trouble, burst in the door. As he did so, Tyzack had the hatchet drawn at arm's length against the constable, and was evidently in the act of striking a murderous blow. Office Meek therefore fired at once by the partly opened door. The ball entered the left breast of Tyzack, and passed through his heart. He fell, and died almost instantly. Meek placed himself in custody of the constable, and proceeded under arrest to the office of Justice P. W. Johnstone, where the evidence was taken, and he was discharged.

Dog Story.—The Bangor Union relates that a large dog had been accustomed to get bits of money from his master to go to a meat stall to get his lunch of fresh meat. One day, when change was short, his master gave Growler a piece of white paper on which was an order for the meat. The dog, after much urging, carried it to the meat stall and received his food, and so for several days; when, thinking one piece of paper was as good as another, he would pick up pieces of white paper and carry them to the stall without applying to his master. It was not long before a long bill came from the meat dealer, who had such confidence in the dog that he did not think to look at the paper, and the dog himself was very fat. No arrest was made, and the dog occupies as respectable a position in society as ever.

NEBRASKA NEWS-A Muss .- We bave received an account of a disturbance among the members of the Nebraska Legislature. We publish it, remarking, however, that the account is one-sided; the other party has yet to be heard from.

The Omaha Nebraskian, in an extra, says:

The House went into committee of the whole, The House went into committee of the whole, yesterday morning, on a joint resolution for the election of public printer. A bill had been previously introduced, for the re-location of the capital, and a motion to suspend rules and put it through without delay had been announced on the part of its friends. To consume time, when the House went into committee of the whole on the printing resplution, several gentlemen, who are opposed to the removal of the capital, spoke against time; thus preventing a motion for the rising of the committee. At this the Speaker and his friends—a majority of the House, and the same men who voted for the "Delegate Resolutions"—became much exasperated and withdrew from the House; the minerity—thirteen in number—remaining in committee.

Speaker Decker and his friends came down to the Douglas House, and in caucus decided to break up

Speaker Decker and in caucus decided to break up the committee and get the chair at all hazards, the Speaker declaring that he would have it or die. It is even rumored that the Speaker and several of his friends armed themselves with revolvers. The chief clerk of the Council was found and persuaded to the council was found and persuaded to the several or the House. On a message from clerk of the Council was found and persaucet to take a message to the House. On a message from the Council being announced, the House being still in committee of the whole, Mr. Thrall in the chair and Mr. Clayes haying the floor, an inquiry was made as to whether the Council was in session, and, the clerk replying that that body was not in session, a rule in Jefferson's manual was cited showing that no message should be received unless both the houses no message should be received unless both the houses were in ses-ion; on which the chairman informed the clerk that his message could not be received, and Mr. Clayes proceeded with his remarks.

At this juncture Mr. Decker, who, with his friends, had returned to the House, started for the Speaker's chair, and, snatching the gavil from the hand of the hairman raised it in a threatning manner, at the chairman, raised it in a threatening manner, at the same time ordering Thrall to leave, remarking that same time ordering Thrall to leave, remarking that he would take possession of the chair or die. Mr. Murohy, on seeing the Speaker in the act of assaulting Dr. Thrall, interfered and endeavored to wrest the gavil from his hand, when a pretty general melee ensued, creating a nice scene of confusion, which, in the expressive language of an eye-witness, would "almost make one think that h—ll had given a holiday and turned all the devils loose in the Nebraska Legislature." Several members "pitched in," and it is said that the Speaker would have been pretty roughly handled had it not been for the timely assistance of Mr. Hanscom—who happened to be withsistance of Mr. Hanscom—who happened to be with-in the bar—in rolling him under the table without even waiting to "suspend rules."

Dr. Thrall still kept the chair, and succeeded in restoring order. Mr. Clayes went on with his speech; Speaker Decker and his friends left the House without getting possession of the chair by force; and at length the committee rose, the members present elected a Speaker pro tem, and adjourned till the usual bour this morning.

It should be remarked that the lobby was crowded during the melee, and that no disposition to interfere during the melee, and that no disposition to interfere was manifested; and, as soon as partial order was restored, every man in the lobby, at the request of Mr. Morton, of Otce, left the room.

The House met this morning at the usual hour; the reading of the journal was dispensed with, and a motion to adjourn to Florence was made and carried, on which the majority withdrew, leaving the minority; who elected Mr. Poppleton Speaker protem, and adjourned till to-morrow morning. The clerk of the House, understanding his business fully, refused to move the journals, minutes, and other papers, but kept the same here at the capitol.

About 10½ o'clock this morning, Mr. Reeves, in the Council, moved that that body also adjourn to Florence. The President, Dr. Miller, very properly refused to entertain the motion; thereupon Mr. Reeves put the metion himself, for which act it is to be regretted that he was not promptly arrested by

The reason of Dr. Miller's refusal to entertain the motion was, that the Legislature could not adjourn under the organic law, without the joint action of the two Houses, and the official action of the Governor. An appeal was taken from the decision, and sustained by the majority The President still firmly refusing the question, Mr. Reeves, of Otoe, arose in his reason and mut the question, which was declarin his place and put the question, which was declar-ed by the President to be informal, and out of order; but, regardless of that, the majority withdrew from

The greatest excitement prevailed, and numerous are the conjectures as to what will be done. If the withdrawing members—twenty-one in the House and eight in the Council—assemble at Florence, the Governor will not and cannot recognize their acts. In the meantime, those members of each House remaining house will assemble at their respective rooms. maining here will assemble at their respective rooms. and, not having a quorum present, will adjourn from day to day.

PORTABLE GAS .- There is one great benefit the gas monopolists profess to confer on the public, and that is, the pavements will be less taken up for pipe-laying, as there will be only one company passing mains through a street instead of one, two, three, or four. Alas! there is a proposition that the pavements shall not be taken up at all, and the subways less burdened as no pines are wanted for ways less burdened, as no pipes are wanted for gas.

The old Portable Gas Company failed in L The old Portable Gas Company fanet in Loudon, not because they could not send out portable gas, but because there was a very restricted private demand for gas, and the pipe companies were able to keep their ground by supplying the street lamps. The establishment charges of the Portable Gas Com-The establishment charges of the Portable Gas Company became too heavy, and the capital was eaten up, and so the carts no longer went forth, and a shopkeeper could no longer receive his bottle of gas. Times are now altered; there is gas in every shop and in many private houses, and the portable gas can find customers enough in Paris among the thousands of consumers of the Union des Gas, and there are considerable sales. As the business has again taken a practical shape, and is of considerable interest to our readers, we think it desirable to make a few remarks on it. The gas business may be divided into two parts—the manufacture and the disvided into two parts—the manufacture and the dis

The manufacture costs but a comparatively small portion of the whole price to the consumer, say in London, out of 4s 6d or 5s, the actual cost of the gas at the factory will not be more than 1s 6d to 2s, but the distribution in pipes becomes burdensome, because not only is the capital sunk enormous, and the cost of repairs very great from the disturbance of pipes under the pavements, but the leakage is very considerable. This leakage varies from 10 to 33 per cent.—that is to say, in some cases 1,500 cubic feet of gas are manufactured to supply 1,000 cubic feet to the consumer, and commonly 1,258 cubic feet. Leakage is being lessened by better management, but it is still a very great loss to the pipe companies. The manufacture costs but a comparatively st ment, but it is still a very great loss to the pipe companies.

Such being the position of the pipe companies, we have now to consider the position of a portable gas company. The Portable Gas Company has to manufacture gas which can be delivered at the factory at 1s 6d or 2s per 1,000 cubic feet; that is to say, if the customers brought their own pots—as they say at the beershops—they could get the gas in London at 2s per 1,000 cubic feet, or less than half price.

The portable gas, when in the house, is no trouble. The cylinder occupies the position now held by the meter, and the inner services and fittings of the house are supplied from it. When emptied, another full cylinder is supplied daily, and the empty cylinder is taken back by the carts. To deliver portable gas, however, a company must have a ty cylinder is taken back by the carts. To deliver portable gas, however, a company must have a plant of carts, of course, which adds to the cost of delivery; but we believe in Paris the gas can be delivered at 2s or 3s 6d per 1,000 cubic feet. The whele capital of the Portable Gas Company is only 150,000f., or £6,000—an inconsiderable sum in comparison with the quarter of a million sterling of an ordinary metropolitan company. As the capital is so small, the amount of profit required is less; and as the price to consumers is low it can be made a ready-money business. A consumer who now pays £4 a year would pay for portable gas about 1s a week.—London Building News.

We would respectfully call the attention of the public te a MARINE CHRONOMETE placed in our window, showing the exact time. It is entirely of American manufacture, and has been exhibited at the World's Fair in Paris in competition with the best London and French Chronometers, and also at the World's Fair in New York, and in every instance has received the highest premium for unequalled workmanship and correct time-keeping.

highest premium for unequalled workmanship and correct time-keeping.

To our watch department we have secured the services of Mr. Ed. Helwig, of New York. Mr. H. can execute any kind of watch-work fully equal to Jurgensen, Frodsham, Adams, or any of the first London or Swiss makers.

In many fine Watches that are broken parts are substituted greatly inferior to the original, the customer paying the full price for a perfect piece of work. The Watch apparently performs well afterward for a while, but is more imperfect and less valuable than originally, in 19 ideb Additional Control of the control of t N KITTS & CO.

AN EVENING WITH THE POETS, - We beg our readers for their own sakes not to forget that Mr. Casseday reopens this select and noble entertainment in the Mozart Hall to-night. An evening with the poets around Mr. C.'s elegant and generous board is not to be lightly foregone. The poets are bright and fascinating companions, under any auspices, but, kindled into their most glorious moods by so genial a host, they must prove especially captivating. They will flash enchantment in every glance, and breathe it in every utterance.

The entertainment, it is perhaps unnecessary to state, will consist of a comprehensive but lucid review of the earlier poets, in which some half-forgotten names will be dragged from the encroaching shades of oblivion into the light of critical appreciation, followed by a concise and eloquent statement of the leading canons of poetry, with copious and beautiful illustrations from the poets, which, in the amazing elocution of the lecturer, will assume a very prominent place among the attractions of the performance. So inviting an occasion seldom tempts the quiet, scholarly portion of our citizens from the soft light of their evening lamps. We do not doubt that they will cheerfully yield to its persuasion.

A meeting of the Third and Fourth Ward Councils will be held at the Odd Fellows' Hall tomorrow (Saturday) night for the purpose of nominating delegates to the American State Convention. which will be held at Frankfort on Wednesday next.

The Plantation Minstrels, a company of amatuer musicians, will give a charity concert at Portland to-night.

MR. FULKERSON'S LECTURE TO-MORROW NIGHT. We invite the attention of the lovers of literature, poetry, and fun to the announcement in our advertising columns of Mr. Fulkerson's lecture for Saturday night at the Masonic Temple. We can assure our readers that the lecture is beautiful and entertaining and will amply repay a hearing. Mr. F.'s recitations from his own poems and those of other authors will be racy and original, and they alone, we venture to say, will be worth the price of admission. It will be a rich treat. Therefore, let everybody and everybody's friend be presen

Boston, Jan. 22. A fire was discovered yesterday afternoon in the cellar of the Chapman school-house by a female teacher. With most extraordinary presence of mind she communicated the information to the other teachers privately. The scholars in eight separate rooms were quietly dismissed in good order without knowledge of the occasion for the holiday. The teachers took positions in the eight doorways, and, preventing a rush, passed all the children out safely. The building contained five hundred scholars. The fire was fortunately extinguished without serious. fire was fortunately extinguished without serious

WASHINGTON, Jan. 21. Senate -Mr. Phelps, from a committee, reported a bill appropriating $7.90,000 to supply the decicency in the amount appropriated for paper, printing, binding, and engraving ordered by the two precedents ding Congresses.

Mr. Ba, and, from the committee on the Judiciary, reported a resolution that Senators protesting against the election of Messrs. Bright and Fitch, or any of them, by themselves or agents or attorneys, be permitted to take testimony our the allegations of the protestants and the sitting members, touching all matters of fact therein contained, before any Judge of the District Court of the United States or any Judge of the Superior or Circuit Court of Indiana, by first giving ten days' notice of the time and place of the proceedings in some public journal printed at Indianapolis. The resolution was laid over for fu-ture consideration.

The Senate took up the joint resolution authori-The Senate took up the joint resolution authorizing the President to present a medal with suitable devices to Commodore Paulding, as a testimonial of the high sense entertained by Congress of his gallant and judicious conduct in arresting a lawless military expedition, and preventing the same from carrying as actual war into Nicaragua.

Mr. Clay said it would seem like prejudicing the question to discuss it at the present time, as the comulties on Foreign Relations had not yet made their report on that part of the message which refers their report on that part of the message which refers their report of that part of the message which refers to the arrest of Werker. The resolution, therefore, should take that direction.

Mr. Doolittle could not foresee what might be the final disposition of the resolution, but he desired to state the grounds on which he deemed it his duty to introduce it. He wished to address himself calmly and disposition for the Sentence of the and dispassionately to the judgment of the Senate, because, by appealing to any partisan prejudice, he would not advance the object in view. He would speak earnestly, for he felt deeply the importance of the proposition in the present juncture of affairs, which involved not only the character and conduct of a high, gallant, and veteran officer of the navy, but the policy of the Administration on the neutralbut the policy of the Administration on the neutrality laws, the laws of nations, our relations towards the feeble republics of Central America, and, perhape more than all other things, the honor, integrity, and good faith of the government of the United States. He referred to the history of Walker, who States. He referred to the history of Walker, who was first heard of as a military adventurer in Sonora, where with a handful of misguided followers, who were completely repulsed and defeated. He subsequently entered Nicaragua where, for a time, he was more successful. He held, or seemed to hold, the power of the government there, but lost it by the same means he acquired it, viz: by the sword. At Rivas he was rescued from inevitable destruction by officers of the United States government.

Whatever power Walker had in Nicaragua was ended upon his surrender at Rivas, whether it was de jure or de facto. He read extracts of letters from Yrissari and Molina to the Secretary of State, to show their gratitude to Paulding for arresting Walker and his men, and quoted from Puffendorf and Vattel to sustain his positions. There are cases when it becomes the duty of an officer to exceed the letter of his instructions for the purpose of more when it becomes the duty of an officer to exceed the letter of his instructions for the purpose of more fully carrying out their spirit. Had Panlding quietly looked on and made no attempt to interfere with the lawless proceedings of Welker, it might have been justly inferred that this Government was in collusion with him and acting good faith toward Niearagna. He repudiated such as idea, and thought tall the power which the Government possessed in the premises was conferred on Paulding in good faith, and it would have been crime for that officer to have neglected approximate technical chiractions to faith, and it would have been crime for that officer to have neglected upon mere technical objections to carry out the clearly expressed wishes of the Govvernment. He argued that governments might justly be held responsible not only for what they do, but for what they fail to do—not only for what is done by the Government itself, but for what is done by its citizens with the knowledge of the Government, when the Government had the power to prevent it. prevent it.

Hence the neglect of this government to prevent an expedition against Nicaragua being organized and set on foot within its limits, when that occurrence was notorious and the government had power to hinder it, have been a just cause for declaration of war by Nicaragua against this country. Had it not been intercepted before the consummation of its obbeen intercepted before the consummation of its object, she might complain that the tiger had been let loose, but she could never complain that we again chained him up. She might indeed complain that Walker had been suffered to violate her territory, but not that our officers had entered her territory to remove him. The only regret he had in this case was that, instead of sending a message, half censure and half apology, the present administration had not fully and frankly avowed and justified the act of Paulding.

Mr. Brown moved a substitute for the resolution, declaring the arrest of Walker and his followers a violation of the territorial sovereignty of a friendly power and not being sanctioned by any existing law. Congress disavows the act and expresses its condemnation of Paulding's conduct in this regard. Mr. Brown, in explaining his substitute, said that the territory certainly did not belong to the United States, and as we are not at war with Nicaragua, it was a violation of her territorial sovenients. was a violation of her territorial sovereignty, because it was unquestionable foreign territory which was invaded by Paulding. He had listened attentively to the remarks of the Senator from Wisconsin to hear by what law the act of Paulding was to be justified.

The President said it was a grave offence, and although the President did not attempt to palliate it, he did not justify it upon any legal ground. If there ever was a fair election in Nicaragua it was when Walker was elected; yet he had been called a pirate. If so, what right had the Executive to turn a pirate loose in the streets of Washington? But this was a miserable pretext. These facts being so a pirate loose in the streets of washington. But this was a miserable pretext. These facts being so relative to the act of Paulding, all he asked was that Congress should disown and condemn it, and the condemnation was placed on the express ground that the act was disavowed by the Administration. If the act had been avowed by the Executive, he should have asked Congress to pass a vote of censhould have asked Congress to pass a vote of censure against the President, the Secretary of the Navy, or whoever gave the order. We had indeed fallen on strange times, when Paulding could say to the Secretary of the Navy: "You fogy, you nincompoop, you are meddling with matters you know nothing about." The Secretary of the Navy, instead of reprimanding Paulding, said he rather thought he had the right to dispose of the naval forces as he pleased. If such a letter had been addressed by Porter, Elliott, or any of the old captains to such Secretaries of the Navy as Smith, Thompson, or Southard, he would forthwith have been rebuked and punished. If the present Secretary does dressed by Porter, Elliott, or any of the old captains to such Secretaries of the Navy as Smith, Thompson, or Southard, he would forthwith have been rebuked and punished. If the present Secretary does not think fit to vindicate his official conduct, he can let it alone. By the resolution of the Senator from Wisconsin, it is proposed to give a medal to Commodore Paulding for gallant conduct. Great God! Paulding, commanding one hundred guns with 500 or 600 men, captured Walker and a handful of followers, who laid down their arms at the first summons Was Congress, for this, called upon to vote a falsehood? Paulding said his (Walker's) men behaved with extraordinary gallantry. Laughter. That with extraordinary gallantry, [Laughter.] That would be much more gallant than the act of Paulding, and much more deserving of medals. [Renewed laughter.] He undertook to say that the expedition was not unlawful. The men had a right to expatriate themselves. There is no proof that the expedition was set on foot in the United States. They had a right to got to Niceragus taking the con-They had a right to go to Nicaragua, taking the con-sequences of their acts. grave error. Mr. Pugh said, if, as has been charged, Walker Mr. Pugn said, it, as has been charged, Walker and his men were fugitives from justice, why were they not handed over to the Marshal of Louisiana, where the offense was committed? It is idle to say that they were arrested as fugitives. All the argument that the President is the commander of the army and navy, and has a right to pursue fugitives beyond the United States is out of the question. If they were a recetages priests, they could be tried at beyond the United States is out of the question. If they were arrested as pirates, they could be tried at the very first part. If prirates, why were Walker and his followers, when in New York and Norfolk, committed to prison. Was it true that the President could send, of his own free will, without the authority of Congress, not only the navy but the army to a foreign country to carry on war The

If Walker went to a peaceful country and committed an offence, he deserved the severest reprehension; but if he went to a country distracted for years and took upon himself and followers all the consequences of war, he did nothing more than persons have always done. He should yote for no medal. have always done. He should vote for no medal. The question was one which touched the rights of every American and involved the salvation of the Government. If the President could, passing from the high-seas, go into a foreign country, and that country could arm him with despote power, it was time that some limit should be placed to such absolute and extraordinary proceedings.

Mr. Pearce obtained the floor and the Senate adjourned to Monday.

TALL SHOOTING .- We have been informed of a trial of skill at rifle shooting that took place at Helena, in this county, between C. A. Adams and John C. Noble, which resulted in killing a turkey at the distance of 550 yards. The shooting was done with target rifles, of small calibre, made by J. H. Wood, of Helena.

H. Wood, of Helena.

The day was very unfavorable, but the turkey was killed the 12th shot by Mr. Noble, his 5th shot having struck the turkey; Mr. Adams, in the mean time, having struck the turkey twice in eleven

The shooting took place in the presence of a large number of spectators, who are ready to testify to the truth of the above statement. This is further than we have ever heard of a turkey being shot, and Mr. Noble says that on a fair day he can kill a turkey in the same number of shots at 800 yards.

[Special Correspondence of the Louisville Journal.] FRANKFORT, Jan. 21. Spiritualism in the Executive Mansion—Card from Mr. J. M. S. McCorkle, etc.

A very remarkable manifestation of the presence of "the spirits" was made at the gubernatorial mansion in this city a few evenings since, for the truth of the material circumstances connected with which I do not hesitate to vouch. Among Gov. Morehea 's numerous guests this winter are several young ladies, whose charms and accomplishments have turned the heads and touched the hearts of all bachelord. The horsebout, and whose presence has charge. turned the heads and touched the hearts of all backelordoff hereabout, and whose presence has characterized the Executive mansion as the culminating point of love and beauty at the State Capital.

At a time when the Governor's lady guests were assembled in the State parlor the conversation turned upon spiritualism. They were all sceptical in regard to the theories of modern spiritualists, but, by gen-to the theories of modern spiritualists, but, by general consent, seated themselves at the center-table, placed their taper ingers upon the marble top, and in sweet acceats commanded the spirits, if they were present, to manifest themselves in the usual way. They called in vain upon the spirits of various departed friends, and were 'about to relinquish the experiment in despair when one of the voung ladies made a last appeal to the spirit of Heary Clay. The sppsal was promptly responded to by three distinct raps, which threw the charming circle into an uproar of dismay. Indeed it is said that a fair creature from your city rushed into an adjoining apartment occupied at the time by Gov. Morehead and his family, threw her arms about the neck of the Governor, and in accents of sweet despair head and his family, threw her arms about the neck of the Governor, and in accents of sweet despair claimed his protection from the terrors of the spirit-ual phenomenon. The Governor did not understand the cause of the alarm, but hoped it would con-tinue to exist. He succeeded, however, in quieting the fears of his fair guest, and the experiments the fears of his fair gless, and the expansion were continued.

The "medium" asked the spirit of Mr. Clay if it had any communications to make, when it replied that it had. It was then asked to whom it wished to make the communication. The reply was, "To the Governor." The spirit then proceeded to make the communication by means of distinct raps, in the beautiful of the communication the communication by means of distinct raps, in the manner observed by well-ordered departed spirits, as follows: "Slavery not to be abolished." All further efforts to communicate with the spirit of the departed sage proved fruitless, and the "rappers" were left to brood in amazement over the brief though ominous manifestation from the spirit-land.

You will find in the Frankfort Cemmonwealth of to-day a card over the signature of J. M. S. M.—Corkle, Esq., which contains faithful history of his connection with the assistant clerkship of the House at the beginning of the session. Such manifest connection with the assistant clerkship of the House at the beginning of the session. Such manifest misrepresentations had gone forth in reference to that matter that Mr. McCorkle's self-respect required that he should make a personal explanation. With a full knowledge of the facts in the case, I feel warranted in endorsing Mr. McCorkle's statement throughout. He was very ungenereusly treated, to employ the lightest terms. The resolution providing for the appointment of an additional clerk was passed with the understanding that he would accept the position; and, after he had been informally appointed, and it was ascertained that the appointment created dissatisfaction in a little circle of Democratic members, the appointment was withdrawn,

Mr. James A. Harper, of Lexington, has exhibited in my presence a raised note, which purports to be a $20 bill on the Bank of Kentucky. It has every appearance of the genuine, but has evidently been raised from a lower denomination, as close serutiny will render apparent. The general appearance of the note is so well calculated to deceive that it passed through the hands of an officer of the branch bank is Lexington, from whom Mr. Harper obtained it, and even eluded the vigilance of Capt. Richardson, of the L. & N. Railroad. The note bears evidence in the vignette, which is composed of several male figures, of having been raised from a lower demonination. The bill has a stiff, formal appearance, and may be detected by a close, experienced observer.

It would be well, perhaps, for me to discontinue these trifling "affairs" for the present, and commit the preparation of the history of the current Legislarure to other and abler pens. In my hasty sketches, I have attempted to be just toward such men and measures as have merited criticism, and generous toward that greater number which has won my admiration. When I have been indiscreet, I trust that a discrimination has been made between my head a discrimination has been made between my head and heart, and that the reader has not forgotten th I was but

AFFAIRS AT FRANKFORT.

[Special Correspondence of the Louisville Journal.] Exhibition of the Deaf Mutes—Methodist Fair at Odd Fellows' Hall—Death of Robert Carmichael—Mr. Ripley's Resolutions—House Bills passed—Mr. Lind-sey's Resolutions—False Alarm of Fire, etc.

FRANKFORT, Jan. 21, 3 P. M.

Last night we had an exhibition of the deaf mutes from the asylum at Danville, in the hall of the House of Representatives, on which interesting occasion the house was filled with the beauty, chivalry, and intellect of the denizens and visitors of Frankfort, all anxious to see how the poor unfortunates were progressing in their literary pursuits. The exhibition was highly interesting, showing conclusively that the pupils are susceptible of the highest attainments in every branch of learning. The readiness with which they answered questions promiscuously put to them, pertaining to history, geography, mathematics, &c., was truly astonishing. I noticed particularly their readiness to detect the slightest error in spelling or in the collocation of words or letters. Among the pupils were a number of very pretty and interesting young ladies, who, unfortunately, "lack words to express their ideas." From the interest taken in the exhibition last evening, I suppose any reasonable appropriation for the Last night we had an exhibition of the deaf mutes ning, I suppose any reasonable appropriation for the benefit of the Asylum which may be asked will be readily granted.

The ladies of the Methodist Church last night held a fair to obtain funds for the rebuilding of their house of worship, which was destroyed by fire some time ago. Of course the belles and beaux were in time ago. Or course the belies and beaux were in full attendance, enjoyed themselves greatly with flirtations and frivolities and partook generously of the elegant repast furnished on the occasion. I am glad to say that the amount of l'argent received on the occasion was entirely satisfactory to the sisters who superintended the feast.

But Frankfort was not all gaiety yesterday. The city was clouded by a gloom upon the arrival of the Lexington train bearing the remains of Mr. Robert Carmichael, who died at Cincinnati a day or two since. He was a gentleman of a high order of intellect, and, in his profession of ornamental gardener, made a great reputation from having laid out and improved the beautiful and romantic grounds of the Frankfort Cemetery. He was universally respected by the citizens of this place, and his death produced deep regret. Yesterday afternoon his remains were followed by a few sympathising friends to the grounds he had so beautified and adorned. Peace to his ashes.

The Senate to-day was engaged almost exclusive-to his ashes.

The Senate to-day was engaged almost exclusively in the discussion of the series of resolutions upon federal relations, offered several days ago by your talented Senator, Col. Ripley, which, I believe, you have already published in full. The Colonel made one of the most powerful and effective speeches of the session in support of his resolutions, and was listened to with breathless interest, not only by the "grave and reverend" Senators, but by the immense crowd of ladies and gentlemen who thronged the lobbies to hear the great national questions contained in the resolutions discussed. He was replied to at great length by Mr. Rust, the Senator from Greenup, who seems to have been put forward on this ocup, who seems to have been put forward on this oc-casion as the particular and favorite champien o the Democracy. The speech was only remarkable for its length, if I may trust my own judgment and the manifestations of the auditory, who, by their impatience and evident disinclination to hear, showed pretty conclusively that they entertained very strong doubts in regard to the capacity of the gentlemen from Greenup to enlighten the assemblage. The vote was taken separately on each resolution, and resulted in a strict party vote, with the exception of Mr. Garrard, the Democratic Senator from Clay who voted with the American party upon the Clay, who voted with the American party upon the first and second resolutions, but going with his party upon the remaining questions. The resolutions were adopted by the Senate, but of course will stand no show in the Heuse, as that body, or a majority of it, seems determined to ignore principle and be oblivious to everything except the merest partizanship.

The House of Representatives today passed a bill incorporating the Ohio County Agricultural Society, which originated in the Senate a few days ago and was passed by that body.

Mr. Jackson, the talented member from Christian, the chairman of the Committee on Agriculture and Manufactures, introduced a bill requiring the various tax collectors throughout the State to furnish statistical information in regard to the agricultural products of the country. After a number of amendments and a good deal of discussion, the bill was flually passed. The bill requires assessors to take account of the quantity of wheat, hemp, tobacco, &c., raised in the several counties of the Commonwealth. The bill is an important one, and Captain Jackson deserves the thanks of the farming community for his attention to their interests.

A bill to amend the Agricultural Deposit Bank at Lexington also passed the House to-day, but with an amendment making the stockbolders individually liable to the amount subscribed by them. The amendment was not very favorably received by the friends of the bank, but it nevertheless passed by a large majority.

Mr. Russell, from the Committee on the Library,

Arge majority.

Mr. Russell, from the Committee on the Library, asked to be discharged from the further consideration of the memorial of W. H. Darby, proposing to furnish the State with complete sets of the reports of the Court of Appeals of Kentucky. Mr. R. stated that under the systicist law the proper officer had that, under the existing law, the peoper officer had the authority to make any purchase he close for the Library or for distribution to counties; whereupon Library or for distribution to counties; whereupon the committee was discharged.

Mr. Lindsey's resolutions, a copy of which you have also puplished, came upon in the House to-day as one of the special orders. They were advocated at length by Mr. L., but as soon as he sat down it was moved to lay all the resolutions on the table, and the motion prevailed by a strict party vote, the Demecrate evidently having determined to dodge the responsibility of voting upon questions which they feared to indorse and dared not condemn. A bill to change the law in regard to wills and their effect elicited considerable debate, but the further consideration of the subject was finally postponed until Monday noon, at which time the bill will have its third reading. An alarm of fire yesterday afternoon called out the fire department, and the rattle of the "machines," the hoarse notes of the trumpet, and the bustle of the "b'hoys" created a considerable excitement for a little while, but it was soon discovered that only a chimney was being rid of an accumulation of soot, and the noise and confusion subsided, the engines were returned to their houses, and Frankfort again relapsed into its usual state of calm indifference and quietude.
